Network Overview

Founded in 2019, the Regional Development Network (RDN) is a provincial nonprofit organization dedicated to enhancing socio-economic development for English-speaking communities across the province of Québec. Supported by a network of 19 community-based organizations serving English speakers in Québec, RDN collaborates with federal, provincial, and municipal governments as a way to represent its network's needs and challenges and to create projects and partnerships.

Socio-economic Development Model

Building Communities

RDN's model was developed with the input and expertise of 17 regional organizations with mandates to support the vitality and well-being of the province's minority language community in 13 out of 17 of Québec's administrative regions.

This socio-economic development model serves as a guiding framework, offering valuable support to organizations working with Québec's English-speaking communities.
